Statement of Compliance

Integrity Instruments, Inc. certifies that to the best of our knowledge and belief, products designated to be RoHS compliant conform to the requirements of the European Union Directive on the Restriction of Hazardous Substance Directive 2002/95/EC (the RoHS directive)

RoHS compliant components used in our assemblies are certified by suppliers and producers, and to the best of our knowledge restricted substances are not used in the manufacture of their products. This is based on the information provided by the suppliers and manufacturers of the components.

Part/Model Numbers

Products designated with a -R at the end of the product number fall in this category. Only the products listed on our website are applicable, and is not a general rule for ordering. As products RoHS compliant are phased in our website will be updated. For example, the RoHS compliant RS-485 converter is model number XP485-9E-R while the non-compliant version is XP485-9E.

Disclaimer

Requests for full component RoHS information will be provided by written request and information supplied will only be made available when the requestor signs a non disclosure agreement, as this information could compromise our intellectual property and manufacturing techniques.
